A YEAR IN REFLECTION: WHAT'S NEXT?

OFF THE TOP

BY MARCUS-JAY WONACOTT
MANAGING EDITOR

One year has gone by since I had the honor of stepping into the shoes of Editor for Drummer Magazine. It has truly been an experience not too dissimilar to the proverbial roller coaster ride! I've had the opportunity to develop good working relationships with many dedicated men and women, both on staff and around the country. What a terrific experience, to play such an interesting role within a community I love and respect deeply!

Drummer Magazine. At this time last year, it was obvious some changes were in order. As a team, we at Desmodus tackled many of the major problems with a high level of success.

As a faithful readership, you stood by us knowing that you would get many of the things you have been waiting to view and read for a long time. For this we thank you. From your letters and telephone calls, it is good to know that we are indeed moving in the right direction.

Drummer Magazine is now on a strict monthly schedule while maintaining excellent quality within the content. In fact, we are still providing a high level of fiction, community information and more hot photographs of the kind of men you would expect from Drummer. We, too, are happy with the results.

Hence, we begin a new year continuing to provide a quality magazine, while still maintaining that "flavor" and uniqueness for which Drummer Magazine is famous.

We have added to our editorial and production staffs which will make a direct impact on the look of all Desmodus publications. We will continue to expand in particular areas, such as community involvement. We intend to be reporting on more international leather events as they occur around the world. Our "Calendar of Events" section will continue to expand with more comprehensive detailing of what is happening in your area.

We welcome new regular contributors, like Marcus Hernandez (Mr. Marcus), who is quite infamous in San Francisco and also well known across America as an astute reporter of Leather News in the Bay Area Reporter. Pat Califia has joined the Desmodus staff to lend her expertise as an accomplished writer, popular columnist and informed Leatherperson. Both these individuals add to our accomplishment of staying at the forefront of what is really happening out in leather communities across the country and the world.

Finally, what our readers have requested more than anything else, PHOTOS, PHOTOS and MORE PHOTOS!!! We are contracting with many talented photographers to bring more hot leathermen to the pages of Drummer. REAL MEN. Men like you and me who look and act HOT AND SEXUAL in and out of their leather. The daddy (or boy) next door; masculine guys you see around your neck of the woods or "urban jungle".

"Realmen" also will show up more as TOUGH CUSTOMERS. Bars and clubs everywhere are scheduling Tough Customer parties for the upcoming year. This is an excellent way for Drummer readers to be in contact with other Drummer readers through our special TC Magazine. We are giving you the opportunity to personally participate by exposing yourself as a TC. If you have a photo from your private (and hopefully XXX-rated) collection, send it to us to publish in TC. There are a lot of men who would like to see and meet you!

As always, every local leather community has their own specific needs and concerns. Drummer is interested in listening to what is going on there and, more than ever before, we will attempt to be there.

The future of Drummer Magazine is bright! We are blazing new trails. Come be a part of it. ■

MALE CALL

To the Editor:

With all due respect to Guy Baldwin, his "Over the Top" in issue 168 was one of the biggest pieces of crap I've had the questionable pleasure of reading in a leather magazine.

Perhaps the reason that no one bothered to stick his neck out, Guy, was because most of us have already decided that mixed dungeons are simply a matter of personal taste, and, in Canada anyway, we consider ourselves adult enough to make the choice that's appropriate to the needs of the individual. There's no one up here wielding the lash if the dungeons aren't pansexual and if there were, I suspect the wielder would be laughed out of town.

But you managed the absurdity of the PC line and go to the opposite extreme. Seeing that coming from someone who's supposedly respected in the leather community, that pisses me off. I would expect far more serious observation from someone like you, but you chose to rant and rave about your right to fuck the packaging, not the man inside. Big fucking deal, Guy. If I understand the argument correctly, that's not the issue. One of our favourite catch-phrases in the December classifieds is "stretching someone's limits". Well, guess what: the issue, pure and simple, is that it might not be such a bad idea for leathermen to grow up and stretch their own limits when it comes to interpersonal relationships. But for some reason, some of us leatherfolk seem so insecure in who and what we are that we feel it necessary to surround ourselves, both in and out of the dungeon, with only those whom we chose. We just can't relinquish that sense of control, can we?

Well, Guy, much as I hate to tell you this, quite frankly, your insecurity is something for you to deal with, not something to be inflicted on the readers of Drummer Magazine. I don't care what contests you chose to ignore, I could give a damn about whom you decide not to play with (let alone where you opt not to do it), and I doubt anyone is seriously interested in who's been declared unsuitable to attend your dinner parties, unless things are so boring in California that the leather groupies have nothing else to do. But, for some reason, you seem to think that Drummer readers should care that you're broadcasting yourself as a shallow SOB who judges his companions strictly by how fast they make his dick rise and that somehow this is all supposedly important information.

Granted, there are some who do not operate that way (and I can think of a couple right off the bat, both of whom think themselves as big deals in leather circles), but I ain't one of them. I don't always play with my friends (Given our various fetishes, it's pretty difficult to find common sexual ground) and they may not be my sexual ideal, but that doesn't stop me from treating them with the friendship and respect I would hope they accord me. Guess what, Guy: there's more to being a leatherman than one's "hotness quotient".

Then we have to listen to poor Guy's agonized depression "for days afterward" because he threw someone a fuck who didn't meet his rather demanding standard of attractiveness. Gee, poor, poor Guy. Do me a favour: stop your fucking whining. If you have so little control over your sexual life that you can't convey the words "No, thank you" without sounding like the pompous asshole manifest in this article, that's your problem, not mine, and certainly not one worth the attention of the majority of Drummer readers, who I suspect, are a bit beyond this kind of childish thinking.

But perhaps the most telling thing in your article comes in your "discussion" of safer sex. Over a decade into AIDS, and, despite your claims to the contrary, you're obviously still having trouble with the concept. You describe it as almost an infringement on your right to have an orgasm, as potential "brain-overload" on your poor engorged dick: if it has to tolerate much more, it just might go into permanent "soft-on", and, my God, then where would you be? You want to think with your crotch? Hey, go for it; have a grand time. But don't even think about putting my friends at risk just so you can get your jollies, unless you're fully prepared to answer for it. Like a lot of guys out there, I've had a few too many friends needlessly die, some for their own stupidity, and I'm not about to let someone as supposedly influential as Guy Baldwin give the jerks with overdriven hormones tacit approval to throw caution to the wind in the name of the Big O. I'm proud of the fact that it was leathermen who led the way in making safer sex as far-reaching and widely accepted within the gay community as it is, and I fail to see the point in undermining that hard-earned reputation just on Baldwin's dictum that there are needs to be met here. Your private erotic behaviors are your own business, that's for damn sure, but when you involve another human being, then it becomes a public matter, with ramifications far beyond the needs of your dick.

Dear Drummer:

Thankfully, Guy Baldwin had the guts to say in print what so many of us have wanted to say for a long time. Many of us who have served on the front lines of the leather/SM/fetish community's progression have observed the encroaching danger of the politically correct sex police.

It is very important that our community be careful not to fall prey to the same judgmental and narrow viewpoint that our detractors espouse. If the gains our community has made are to be preserved, we must tolerate diversity of opinion and behavior within our own ranks. We must most certainly not tell others how to direct their sexual energies. Yes, safe sex and technical information should be disseminated. But to tell someone who they should play or socialize with, is tantamount to erotic fascism.

Ultimately, our scene is about sex, and sex is a very difficult thing to get people to agree upon. Let's not try. Let's just enjoy it.

MARCUS THE MERCILESS

BY MARCUS HERNANDEZ

ascend to the title and succeed Henri on Memorial Day 1994. At this writing there are already almost two dozen men with local leather titles working toward the day when the gold ring may fall into their hands.

It seems to be the consensus that the longer you have your bar, city or regional title, the more you learn, the more people you meet and the more opportunities you have to establish a record of community service, fundraising, travel and just plain "getting out there".

It is an incongruous state of affairs that often a "top" leather man will almost overnight become a bottom -- a "bottom" to the community! The same holds true for leather/SM women who aspire to the International Ms. Leather title (in San Francisco March 17-20 weekend). And while fundraising and activism for men is most often

Within weeks after Henri Ten Have was named International Mr. Leather 1993 in Chicago last May, leathermen in communities around the nation began the year long trek toward Chicago with one thought in mind -- to

(but not always) for AIDS-related charities, women activists have given their energy to advocate for women's causes such as breast cancer, women's clinics and legal battles being fought for lesbian parental rights as well as other causes. They have not neglected AIDS causes for both men and women.

In the process, leather title aspirants raise thousands of dollars for various causes in any given year. Win or lose, in the final analysis of competition, these people continue their good works until they hand that sash to their successors and in many cases, even beyond. It was my intent to list some of the winners in contests but the list has grown considerably, so results will appear here in a future issue.

In the meantime, I would be remiss if I did not advise aspirants to leather titles, both male and female, to immediately obtain a copy of former International Mr. Leather Guy Baldwin's book: The Leather Contest Guide, A Handbook for Promoters, Contestants, Judges And Titleholders. Published by Daedalus Publishing, Los Angeles, it should be available in most gay book stores for $12.95 or by mail order.

Read the whole thing. You will not have spent time in vain. The book gives an overall view of what these contests are all about, sound advice for everyone involved and what is advisable should you win the big one. For anybody longing to become a member of the sash rash club, this book is required reading!

EVENTURES IN LEATHER

If you got over the Mid-Atlantic Leather weekend in Washington, D.C. by the Centaur Motorcycle Club or the Uniform Weekend in Portland, Oregon in January, you're a good man Sammy Brown! February will not be without its excitement:

Seattle kicks off the month with the Mr. Seattle Leather Contest weekend Feb. 4th to 6th. Finalized plans not complete at my deadline, but Generic Leather Productions and The Cuff Bar hold the $7 contest at Neighbors Bar beginning at 2000 on Sunday, Feb. 6 and it will benefit various AIDS agencies in that city. Winner goes on to represent Seattle in the Mr. Washington State Leather competition in April.

Mardi Gras madness prevails in New Orleans when the Lords of Leather Mystic Mardi Gras Krewe present the 11th Annual leather ball on Sunday, Feb. 13. Contact Neil Gordon, (504) 866-9369 for ticket, theme and costume information.

Weekend of February 18--20, action all over the country. Chicago hosts its first rodeo this weekend but no details were available at press time. Contact Don Nowotny, Illinois Gay Rodeo Association, P.O. Box 3158, Chicago, IL 60654 or call (312) 642-1675.

Also this weekend, Bear Expo '94 in San Francisco. After Jan. 1st, it'll cost you $125 for the whole weekend. This year, they've added an "Art? Show" (their words) and soliciting submissions in prints, paintings, color and b&w photos, cartoons, ceramics and bear videos (less than 10 mins.). Host hotel Holiday Inn Golden Gateway. Call (415) 647-9127 for details or write: Bear Expo '94, 2261 Market St., Suite 160, San Francisco, CA 94114.

And to add to the festivities this weekend: Black Guard of Minneapolis Black Frost weekend run always a fun winter event. Contact: Black Guard of Minneapolis, P.O. Box 8989, Minneapolis, MN 55408-0989.

Melbourne Leather Men of Australia present Leather Pride Week all week (Feb. 18-25), spearheaded by MLM and your host: Brent Lacey, 1st runner-up at IML last May '93. Contact: MLM, P.O. Box 188, Glenhuntly, Victoria 3163, Australia. Lots of G'day-ing is in order!

By the time you read this, you may already know that Wally Wallace, long the reigning master of New York's Mine Shaft is back in business and riding herd in the Big Apple. His new bar/club, THE LURE, opened the last week of 1993 at 409 West 13th Street in New York. Already, the 7,000 sq. ft. space - complete with 4'x8' oven-type cells and all the other usual amenities are being sampled by connoisseurs of fine arts for men.

At my deadline, an actual opening date had not been set for the addition of Mister S/Fetters shop on the premises with 400 sq. ft. space carrying the complete line of their extensive inventory.

The name of Wally's club, THE LURE, is an acronym for Leather, Uniform, Rubber, ETC. The word lure, in itself, needs no explanation. Be advised there is a strict dress code on weekends so don't embarrass yourself by trying to get dressed improperly. That's the LURE in New York City - are you man enough?

Hang in there until your next Drummer fix comes along. In the meantime, keep living, keep laughing and keep loving. Don't forget to whistle while you lurk -- just perform it all in leather!

(WB) HORROR TALES FROM IRAN

PRESS RELEASE

TEHERAN, Iran-

Behind the graybrick wall of Gasr Prison a professional interrogator has horrified Iranians with detailed confessions of how he tortured hundreds in the name of ruler and country.

He carried out his job, he said, as an unemotional technician. He found the screams unsettling and used to stuff cloth in his victim's mouth so he could work in silence. "I never experienced any personal hatred toward these people. I was just doing my job."

He was a member of SAVAK, the secret police force set up by Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi in 1957 and trained by U.S. and Israeli personnel. SAVAK was a key instrument in the Shah's consolidation of absolute power. It was both an intelligence and police service operating in secrecy and immune from jurisdiction of civil courts. Its members, who were believed to have numbered between 20,000 to 60,000, infiltrated every level of society, from the mosques to the ministries to the university classrooms.

"The prisoners were not always shot", Feridun Tabrizi, 34, testifies. "Often we would torture them with hot iron bars. It was normal duty to beat the prisoners with cables on their bare feet until they could walk no more." During his 3 days of testimony, Tabrizi, his voice sometimes breaking with emotion, told the court that political prisoners were sometimes held over gas burners of stoves. Others were tied to chairs or tables and tortured with electricity. Men and women alike were strung upside down and beaten, burned and scalded. The trial of Tabrizi began last week at Gasr Prison, a fortress-like structure, which during the Shah's reign held hundreds of political prisoners. Iranians called it "The House of Remorse."

Tabrizi offered little in the way of a defense at the final session Wednesday night except to say he believed he was torturing communists and subversives, and was doing his duty to protect the Shah and Iran. He said he had repented and asked for forgiveness.

Calendars. Okay, so 1994 got started before I told you—as I do every year—that the best calendar for the new year is the Forge 1994 Leather/Cuir calendar. It is. As always. If you aren't already gazing at the January page of the Forge calendar, get moving! Write to Forge Studios, 552 Church St., Suite 500-24, Toronto, Ontario, Canada, M4Y 2H0. I'm not sure of the US price, but I'll bet they could send you one for $15.00. If I'm guessing wrong, you'll owe them a few bucks, or they'll have a few to pass through to a local charity.

If you want to enjoy your calendar groin first, Forge is the ticket. On the other hand, if you want a head-scratchin' brain-teasin' calendar, that's a different story—could be a very different story. In fact, the perfect alternative is the Telegraph Avenue Street Calendar, a 12-month primer on Berkeley weirdness. Instead of leather studs, you get naked mud-people, plop-artists, X-plicit street actors, street people in clothes, and Berkeley's most famous sweet treat "The Naked Guy," not to mention "Schmoe, the lowest of the low." Rubber Rebel: The Fetish Photomagazine and Rubber Trade: Your Fetish Newsletter arrive. Distinguishing the contents of the newsletter from those of the magazine is a bit difficult at first. R: Rough has 15, 8 1/2 by 11 inch prints in a single set. A crowd of hunky, hairy cops nab, shave, and make excellent use of an (obviously) offending stud. Hhh! Hot!

S: Sizzling has 18 prints. Three are from The Hun's famous "for the Kraut" continuing saga of GI revenge in Viet Nam. (Delicious, and the racial/racist overtones are purely hot, situational stimulation.) The remaining 15 prints in S range from portraits of Cain Berlinger and Billy Jefferson—hot, black, and attitudinal—to illustrations from Cuir, MACH, Pump It Up!, Bear Fax, Skins, Trash, and Drummer, as well as some private commissions

R and S will get you roaring and shooting. And you can have them for just $20 each, plus $2 shipping for the first item, $1 each additional. Incredibly good deal! Write now. XERO BONDAGE.

"Welcome to the Bondage Book," opens the text of photographer Rick Castro's latest (and greatest) project, "a(n) erotic havride to the party at the top of my legs!" The photocopied, 66 page book/zine announces itself as "quarterly or whenever I [Castro] can get it together."

If he can get a collection like book #1 out four times a year, it'll be well worth the $32.00 plus $5.00 postage. (The second time I ever heard of postage added to a subscription price!) In this first volume, you get tits to write home about, dicks to spend hours with (10 minutes at a time), some leather hoods, candle wax, a swastika, and lots of expertly applied rope bondage. You get leather and handcuffs, boots and shackles, submission and defiance, and lots of gags. Ah, and bodies that will inspire both fantasies and action

The gritty copies are clear enough, meaning you can see them; and they are darkly cheap enough, meaning you can get off on them.

HOMO ADVENTURES.

Hans Ehensten's travel writing is probably best known—at least to me, and likely to you—from his work as published in Christopher Street. A number of the infamous travel-master's CS pieces are reproduced in the new, Viking-published book, Volleyball with the Cuna Indians and Other Gay Travel Adventures.

This book was not written for leathermen, but any gay leatherman who fails to enjoy it has a problem with his reading skills. You may need a little bait though. So, how's this: Chapter 3, The 98 Motorcycle Cops of Florence. It's a tantalizing title, a delightful tale of an American in "paradise," if sharing quarters with the title characters can be called such and it is an exquisite example of personal memory as political history.

In fact, "Volleyball" is personal memoirs, cover to cover, and a revealing history of what being gay means and what it has meant over the past six decades.

There are erotic buzzes and sexual sighs here, plenty of them, but reading "Volleyball" is another kind of pleasure, a deeper and more lasting experience. You'll learn a lot about the odd places to travel to in the world, and—inevitably—about gay men relating to the wide world, but if you're over 30 (better, over 50) you'll learn even more from what "Volleyball" evokes in memory. Younger readers will find a lot of the acts and reflections in the book unbelievable. Believe me, they're true.

Don't skip over Volleyball with the Cuna Indians just because it isn't a "leather" book. It shoots at another level, beyond lifestyle or sexual orientation, and inspires human dreams.

O-YEAH?!

Jack Hart of Gay Sex fame has produced another book, My Biggest O, where the O stands for the obvious orgasm. Sadly, the 40 stories here range from big yawns to small, smirking giggles. There is a drubbing sameness, a cloying cuteness, a desperate dispassion overpowering and underpinning the entire book.

So, why mention "Big O" at all? Because Gay Sex was so good you might be inclined to say, "Jack Hart, yes! Gotta have it." No, you don't. Buy yourself a new copy of Hart's earlier effort instead.

THE OTHER O: OLLIE.

Ollie of Orlando is not as famous as Tom of Finland, and he very likely never will be. Nonetheless, if you're not getting enough SM fiction in magazines, and you're gobbling up the slight stream of SM fiction books, you'll want to grab a copy of Ollie's Florida

Bound by Frank Steiner.

Florida Bound is self-proclaimed "one-handed reading," and—even if you find both hands on the book at times—it also gets to the point rather well at times. The story is simple enough, a summer off on the way to college, and a kidnap encounter on an SM estate. It's familiar enough terrain on which our hero (?) takes some interesting turns.

The spiral bound, 106-page book is still in the underground category (more from physical style than content) so order it directly from the publisher: Ollie Stewart, 2346 Keystone Drive, Orlando, FL 32806. Send $11.95 plus $2.05 postage, and the usual old-enough statement.

SO LOW.

The Ball Club's done it again. Twice more! Their two new videos are, in a sense, just like their previous ones. In another sense, at least one of the new ones is quite different. What's the same in all BC videos is a completely obsessed theme: cock and balls, mostly balls. Also the same: high quality, no fuss, go-for-the-gusto action.

CBT, the first of the pair of new tapes, is pretty much like a BC standard, but with some outstanding pluses. How about nettles used for C&B torture, for example. The play with nettles is (wisely) done outside, and involves one heavily gloved man applying the leaves and stems of the stinging nettle to his own genitals and the other guy's. Indoors, we watch lots of ball banging, urethra fucking, and a few surprise moves. You have to be surprised when a guy takes out a scalpel and slashes his own piss slit open wider (very bloody), but the bigger surprise is a man lifting himself off the floor by a rope tied around his balls and run through a hook at the top of a closet door. Somehow the messy closet in the background makes the scene all the more perfect. This tape is easily the most varied and interesting BC effort so far. Another surprise: a knot tying lesson of special interest to ball players, but useful to all, I'm sure.

Friday Night Ball is far less extreme. There's no gushing blood, no heart-stopping intensity, but it's every bit as sexy as CBT. It may be sexier by having a tighter focus on remarkable balls being abused in ways you and I and our playmates could (with practice) imitate.

Great bulges, eye-popping ball action: punching, beating, stretching, twisting, weight-lifting, and more. One highlight comes when our heroic ball basher slips nearly 20 steel rings on his ball sac, stretching it out longer than his huge, fat dick.

Don't miss Friday Night Ball. It's 80 minutes of action, action, action. BC tapes can be ordered from BC, P. O. Box 1501, Pomona, CA 91769. Send $60.00 for VHS, $67.00 for Beta, Pal, or Secam. Prices include postage in the US. Add $10.00 elsewhere. No Canadian Orders accepted. (Of course, they'll want your promise that you are over 21 and eager to get sexual explicit mail in your box.)

MISSING INACTION

If you're still looking for the celebration of Larry Townsend promised for this issue of Drummedia, two facts are clear: One, you aren't very used to the delay between my promises and my delivery. Two, you read me more closely than most. Nonetheless, I hope the promised celebration will be along very soon.

CONVERSATIONS WITH WALTER KLINGLER

BY MARCUS HERNANDEZ

It's hard to imagine a more enviable position in the realm of leather competition than the one held by Walter Klingler, a Chicago leather man who has dealt intimately and on many levels with almost every International Mr. Leather contestant since 1983. According to his estimate, that amounts to some 450 leather men - the cream of the crops harvested from bar, city, state and regional competitions in the U.S. and most recently from around the world.

Walter Klingler wasn't into the leather scene that night in late 1981 when curiosity about leather led him to venture into the world famous Gold Coast Bar at Clark & Illinois Streets.

He was just on the brink of landing a job as an accountant for the fledgling Howard Brown Clinic, Chicago's major AIDS facility these days. That night, he met Harley McMillan who was on staff at Howard Brown and involved in fund-raising for it. Needless to say, Walter got the job and soon after found himself sporting a bucket to collect cash donations from the audience at the 1982 International Mr. Leather contest at the Park West. When the next year rolled around, he was asked to volunteer to be the "fluffer" for the contestants. The volunteer job of getting the contestants registered, lined up, housed, and on and off the stage went from "fluffer" to Den Daddy.

Walter could write a book about his experiences with all these men.

There was the one whose leather was lost at the airport; another whose britches split up the back minutes before his onstage stride; the one who fainted from heat and exhaustion after alighting from the bus at the contest site. And what about suddenly having to find French, Italian, German, Spanish and American Sign Language interpreters at the last minute?

Somehow, via quick thinking and uncanny ingenuity plus that undying showbiz "the show must go on" attitude, Walter managed to save the day and every single dude who has graced the IML stage will never forget Walter's smiling, encouraging help, advice and genuine caring attitude for his charges. He has had to deal with stage fright, cold feet, loss of voice, loss of nerve and a myriad of other problems both major and minor - or so it seemed to the contestants themselves.

But Walter would never take credit for himself for this success. In his endearing and disarming way and modesty beyond comprehension, he heaps the praise and success of his nonpaying position to his volunteers and especially Josh Spaulding and Jim Harp who have helped with the task for almost as many years as Walter has been involved. Getting the aspirants to registration, their hotel rooms, the rehearsals, on and off that bus for three solid days is not easy. It is not uncommon for Walter to bring a sewing kit, a razor, an iron to press shirts, aspirin, cold tablets, asthma inhalers and a whole lot of empathy to the men he will live/laugh/dish/console and yes, even cry with throughout every Memorial Day weekend.

Walter is not a joiner. He is an innovator who has succeeded in his every endeavor. He prefers to work quietly in the background and his expertise shows most brilliantly for a job well done in accounting, setting up grant acquisition monies, advising and often managing fund-raising techniques and strategies. As far as many people are concerned, Walter Klingler stands out as a jewel beyond comparison. Howard Brown

Clinic, Open Hand, Chicago House and the Frank Rodde Fund as well as the Chicago Health Department's AIDS/HIV Office are beneficiaries of Walter's expertise and talent.

As for his assessment of the contestants and the contest itself, Walter says he knew who the winners would be almost immediately after meeting the group every year and has picked at least five of them since his association with the job. In his opinion, the IML title has evolved from what was once perceived, by many, as merely a beauty pageant with leather. Since he was first involved, Walter is assuredly pleased that the IML title has gone beyond the "pageant" status.

In addition to the contestants, Walter has to deal with the show producers, the judges, the promoters and lovers and friends of the contestants. Not an easy job. While Walter would never point out anyone in particular as a thorn in his side, I personally have witnessed some of the problems he has had to deal with. Need I tell you Walter usually winds up with the victory wreath?

He personally admires not only the winners, but all the competitors who can mostly all claim allegiance to community involvement and helping others. That's a good crowd to hang with. And of all the winners, Walter has his favorites but was reluctant to name them — at least for publication!

And to the question of ending his career as Den Daddy, IML, Walter responds with a vehemently negative reply. He says he will never voluntarily give up that job. And if he did, who could succeed him? Who would even try? •

HOW TO PLEASURE A COCK.

ROUGH
STUFF

then even straight men like blow jobs.

There is a lot more to sucking well than simply having a prick in your mouth. The quick anonymous suck-encounters that one experiences in parks, adult bookstores, and tea rooms certainly do the "job". They provide release and satisfaction, albeit somewhat dangerous and temporary, to the men who seek their thrills that way. I was never one who spent much time cruising parks nor have I ever had sex in a public rest room, though in my early, just-coming-out days, I did hit the bookstores often.

Leather, relationships, and the years have changed all that. I still go for the quick thrill and the one night stand on occasion, but real pleasure comes with knowing your partner and enjoying a full range of well-paced activity. When you know the man you're playing with, you learn so many more ways to satisfy him. He'll know your hot buttons as well.

It was while I was occupied as described above that I got the idea for this article. I was literally face to face with a beautiful cock. My chin was brushing the rather large testicles that would feed the prick its precious man juice. The rod itself was engorged with blood, extended to its maximum and hefty eight inches. It filled my vision, smooth and straight, gently but powerfully resting in my view.

The prick's mushroom-shaped head lay in front of me, shiny with my spit. Its healthy, flesh-colored glow beckoning me to worship. I am a cocksucker. This penis is my god.

I am naked, prostrate on the altar that this bed has become. Occasionally, my partner will pinch my tits or caress my hair, but most of what will happen tonight will be in praise and pleasure of this man's manhood.

We will end when his cock has raised itself in glorious orgasm, spewing its life-force all over his torso. His cock will bring him to what the French call "le petit mort," the little death, an incredible time when time stands still and ecstasy consumes the moment.

I write too fast. The fleeting moment of ejaculation is but the end. There is so much more to the fine art of pleasuring a prick. Let me take you to a knowledge of the craft...

How one gets to the act of cocksucking varies among the participants. For some it is a mutual sixty-nining: each man sucking the other's cock, mouth to man-root. Others kneel adoringly before the god who receives without any return. Cocksucking is a universal. Wives do it with husbands, men with boy friends, strangers with each other, slaves with their Masters, fuck-buddies, tricks, johns, queers together.

In any case, the best cocksucking begins away from the cock. Foot worship, massage, licking, and caressing of arms and legs are all ways to begin. I prefer to start by rubbing the feet of my fully clothed partner, slowly disrobing him as I earn my way to his manhood. It is a slow, deliberate process.

Use your mind and your body as you perform your sexual magic. Be slow and relaxed. He'll feel the sensations in his limbs all the way to his crotch. They are signals to his genitals that the sacred rite has begun. If you find yourself moving too quickly, retreat and begin again.

If your boy is moving too quickly, make him start over. It is your pleasure, the pleasure of your staff that is important. Let time have no rule in the moment. Let cock command. Let the god-cock reign.

I've removed my partner's shoes and socks, massaged his feet, rubbed his legs, waist, and crotch gently. His pants keep me from the intimacy I desire, even as they increase the sensuality of what is happening. I strain to get my hands under the cloth, next to the flesh I so desire.

My partner removes his shirt. I see the line of hair that leads to the center of my devotion. I lick the hairs that mark his maturity. I brush his nipples. I know how well they are connected to his man-root. Our long history of play has taught me how truthfully his tits are little cocks. They are buttons that fill his rod with power, that stiffen it in excitement.

I brush my nose across the bulge beneath his pant's zipper. My lord I seek you. I desire you. I worship you.

So very much of good cocksucking is rooted (excuse the pun) in the mind. Attitude counts as much here, perhaps even more, as technique. Use your imagination to see yourself giving satisfaction, giving devotion. Allow yourself to surrender to the beauty, the power, the manliness of prick. See it as knowing, as life-giving, joy-inducing, as divine.

My partner loosens his belt buckle. I lift my head, seeking, lusty for the head that will command me. I nuzzle into his crotch hair, silently pleading for my cock-master to let me view him. He signals for me to remove his pants. Now he is as naked as I. Each of us will worship his cock in our own way.

I move closer to his penis. I stare at its ooze of pre-cum. The odor of his masculinity reaches my nose. I inhale it happily, savoring its aroma, letting the breath of it fill my lungs, my body. I am his cock-slave.

East coast wisdom warns us never to put a cock in our mouth without first covering it with a condom. West coast safe-sex guidelines are more liberal and dispense with the need for a latex sheath during cock-sucking. I will usually suck a naked cock, but always rinse it with my spit as I do. The lube from my mouth makes sucking and swallowing easier and kills (I think) many of the germs that I need fear. In any case consult your physician for the guidelines you feel you need to follow.

I hold my head in front of the head I will savor. My partner lets me pause there, makes me pause there. I long to bathe that prick with my tongue, to swallow its fleshy power. Instead, knowing that patience and slow speed are our allies, he sends me back to his feet.

I obey the commands of my cock-master, for his pleasure is my delight. Once again, my tongue massages his toes, his soles, his ankles. It is a steady process, the prize getting near with each lick.

My mouth nears his upper thighs. I circle his staff with my tongue. I nuzzle into the crotch hairs on either side of his testicles. I kiss his balls.

I kiss them gently, quietly, slowly. My lips are tender and dry. It is a moment of deep respect, silent praise, and pleading to come nearer.

He opens his legs and I lick under his testicles, my tongue straining to taste his ass opening, the musk of his anus. I know too that here is the root of his root. There is more cock to please than what we see. The shaft is sensitive and responsive behind the testicles as well as in front

His nuts lie on my nose as I use my tongue to clean and excite my partner. I lift his ball sac with my face, jostling his sperm-makers gently. I want to make his gonads boil with pleasure.

For his part my partner strokes his own man-meat. His rituals are different than mine, but his worship the same. Sometimes, after the passion and the play has ended, we share the meaning, the feelings, the insights that our sex rites give us. He's never told me his thoughts during these moments of cock-worship, but I do know how I feel when a slave sucks me.

When I'm the Top, my focus moves to my prick as I stroke it slowly, squeezing its thickness, pulling on its smooth power. I ooze pre-cum and use it to lubricate my dick head. I pinch the flab of skin where my foreskin used to be, just under my cock's head, on the bottom side of the shaft.

I lift my hips slightly, letting the boy nuzzle the prick behind my balls. I squeeze his head with my thighs. I see my cock stand straight in my fist. Every ounce of me strains to pour itself into the pleasure center that I have become. I call the gods of the universe to see this god come alive, to take pleasure in seeing my cock's pleasure. I, the cock-master, become the cock's slave as well, as I worship my own rod. It is so much me and sometimes so much other.

I lie back and let my slave's devotion continue. I remind him to play with my tits, to lick my nuts. We are one in this cocksucking.

Now, though, I am worshipper. My partner wants me to focus on his tits. I obey and raise my body so that I can please them. I will suck them, in much the same way I suck his rod. I will draw them, one at a time (oh for another mouth to do both at once!) into my mouth. I will caress them with my tongue.

I will squeeze them between my thumbs and forefingers, rolling them carefully. I will lightly pinch them between my fingernails, careful not to exceed his pleasure thresholds, careful not to be too light either. I rub my abdomen on his cock. I dedicate all of my body to his pleasure. I align my legs with his, rub his feet with mine. He pushes my head towards his crotch, a silent and welcome command to engorge myself on his man-root.

I begin our ritual of tongue bathing his penis. I lick from the base upwards in broad, slow strokes. I cannot go too slowly here. I savor each centimeter of man-root. When my tongue reaches the ridge of his cock head I retreat back to the base and retrace my path.

I am careful to move from side to side. I strain to lick every cell on the skin of his shaft. My licking changes to kissing, my kissing to sucking, my sucking to ever so gently gumming, pulling what looseness of flesh I can find.

I trace the edge of his cock-crown with my tongue, paying attention to rim it in slow short strokes. I cuddle his cock-head in my mouth, explore his piss slit. I crave his fluids, the taste of pre-cum only a hint of his life-giving juice.

I want him to piss, but he won't, not now, not when he is this excited. I will assuage my thirst for him by obedience. His pleasure, his will, are my only desires.

The idea is to combine all sorts of mouth and body movements with actions of mind and spirit. Slow, practiced variety gives the best pleasure. My reward will be to enclose the cock-head with my mouth, to hold my god.

My partner moves his legs together. I part my legs so to kneel astride him. His knees can play with my balls and cock, teasing them, knocking them, giving them pain or pleasure as he pleases. I am surrendered to him. All that matters is the god-cock and his two tits.

I do my best to remember to use my whole self in this pleasuring. It's easy enough to use one's finger, mouth, tongue. I try to include my legs, my chest, my chin.

The man with the cock I adore pinches my tits roughly, squeezing them between his fingernails, twisting pain into their tenderness. I groan.

Imagination is part of the pleasuring as well. I see the pain in my mind's eye. I sense the pleasure in my own cock. I visualize both as I mentally offer them to my cock-master. They are gifts from slave to cock-god. I imagine the feelings as light, as power, as electricity, as they move from me to him.

My energy touches him, excites him. He receives my gift of power, my surrender of self to him. Let him take what he wishes: my tits, my cock, my balls, my being. I am a cocksucker and need nothing but prick to control me in this moment.

Experience has shown me the practical wisdom of Eastern thought. There are energy centers throughout our bodies, and as I suck and lick, I visualize my centers opening and joining with those of my partner. I send my energies to him. I open myself to receive his.

I pause above the prick I worship. My lips encircle its head. My tongue rubs the cock-slit, circumvents the ridge of the crown. A hand pushes me down onto the holy shaft.

"Suck, boy," I am commanded.

I take a breath and slowly descend onto the cock, opening my throat to receive its length. I pause at its base until my body revolts in its need for air. I raise my head, pulling the cock with me, until I reach the crown. Again and again, I repeat.

the action. I bob up and down as I fuck my face

I suck. To do so is my delight. But it is more than that. As I suck, I caress the cock with my tongue, play with his tits with my fingers, direct my being to his pleasure, send my energy to bathe him, excite him, please him

I am filled with a silent chant of praise, of adoration, of desire

My partner is cut so there is no opportunity to play with a foreskin. When an uncut man (a rare and happy find) lies in front of me, there are special movements for him. Suck the skin, nibbling gently, pulling it over his cock head. Slip your tongue into the puckered folds. Suck the skin into your mouth, licking between the head and the foreskin that surrounds it, or gently spread the hood with your fingers, caressing with tongue or finger the cock-head within

Keep your movements slow and deliberate. Less is often more: tiny licks, gentle kisses, soft breaths. Alternate mouth with hand, sucking cock with sucking nuts. Sit astride the prick and rub your ass hairs over it. Tempt your ass with his shaft as you tempt his shaft with your ass. Use your butt cheeks to squeeze the rod, to massage it, to give it pleasure

Play with his tits, nuzzle his armpits, his crotch, the tender spots on his upper thighs, behind his ears, behind his knees. Always return to pleasure his man-root. Remember that he is more than a cock, that the rest of his body is filled with zones that will stimulate his cock, even as you give pleasure to the other parts of him

Don't rush to bring him to orgasm. Instead listen to his body's signals. Is he breathing fast, thrusting his hips forward, groaning? Keep him on the edge of ecstasy as long as you can. Let him float in bliss

If you are in control of the situation, make time for "breaks". Let your worshipper come up for air, rest from the sucking in short bits, to return to the task in a relaxed but dedicated frame of mind

There comes a time, of course, when all things must come to an end. Happily, this ending will be well worth it. Let your cock-slave know where and how you want him to be when you shoot. My partner has me mount myself astride his hips. I play with his tits, while he strokes both of our rods to ecstasy

You may wish him to lick you in a special area, to stroke you to climax, or to fuck him. I prefer to come while being rimmed, spewing my jism across my boy's chest. Some Masters want there to be simultaneous orgasms, others don't want their slaves to come at all

When the sacred moment comes, our cock will prove that it has a head (and a will) of its own. There's no need for instruction here, except of course to remind you to enjoy it

In the bottom role, continue to stimulate your partner as he shoots, making the touching more delicate if necessary. Imagine the orgasm as being energetic as well as physical and emotional. Unite your energy to that of the cock you are servicing

When his climax has passed, let your man rest and enjoy the "glow". Don't rush to disturb the feelings, let them flood him without being bothered, until he stirs and bids you to his command. Be helpful in cleaning up, in drying him, in helping him to come down

Attitude is so much the basis of good sex, and of good cocksucking, I remember a particularly good orgasm recently, with a hot young man in his early twenties. When the sucking was done and I lay there with his white jism on my hairy stomach, he apologized for having gotten me "dirty"

This is the bane of our culture: that sex is dirty, evil, meant to bring shame and guilt. Such are the lies that we live with, such are the lies that leathermen must confront every day

We have to face them in our own selves as well. What we think about dicks, sex, sperm, our bodies is deeply rooted in who we are. Be clear on the beauty of your manhood, and cocksucking will be the joy it was created to be. Embrace the act as giving, sharing, clean, wholesome, beneficial, even, if you will, holy, sacred, divine. Such positive attitudes will deal more than any techniques you'll ever be taught

Sexual activity is uniquely personal from man to man. Techniques vary, desires are diverse. Take time to learn your body, the bodies of the men with whom you play Show this article to your favorite sex partner and experiment with its instructions. Be free to discuss what appeals to you and what does not. Share with him the source of your desire, the assumptions about sex, safety, pleasure, and service that make you tick

I haven't used the admonition enough. "Have fun." There's no right way, no wrong way to please a prick. Learn what works and what doesn't and enjoy. After all, pleasure is really what cocks are all about

Have a great month practicing. I wish I could show you in person what a great gift a cock can be. Short of that, show your friend what a great cocksucker you can be. We'll all be better off if you do

AMERICAN UNIFORM

ASSOCIATION

BY MURRAY McMILLAN

Just when was it, exactly, that the sight of a scrapping, beefy man in a neat, tautly tailored uniform first gave you that wonderfully strange tingling sensation in your left ball?

For some of us, that sensation came long before we knew what the left ball was for—or the right one, for that matter, perhaps before we could find either of them. The moment may have come at a community parade, when the skirl of a police pipe band was followed by row after row of handsome men turned out in dark-blue uniform splendor, only to be followed by a motorcycle drill team—breeches crisply pressed, tall, spit-shined patrol boots glistening in the summer sunshine.

Or perhaps it was the military contingent that did it for you, or to you. Row upon row of tightly cropped ramrod-erect Marines passing in review, not a speck of lint to be seen, nor one sharpshooter medal out of place. Or maybe the thing that did it was the half-a-shipful of sailors in summer whites that clung to their bodies like so much Saran Wrap, the damnable polyester of the things so almost-transparent that the lines of their Navy-issue baggy boxers were abundantly clear, even if their religion may not have been.

For others the recognition comes in grade school, when the community liaison cop pays a classroom visit and youngsters are mesmerized. And liaisons of other kinds spring to mind. The motto was "The policeman is your friend," and I took it to heart.

As with men in the SM community and the rubber community, and other somewhat allied subcultures within the larger group loosely called the leather community (not ALL the uniform men I know consider themselves leathermen, but most certainly do), we come to specialized interests in individual ways. And like almost all such interests, it matters little how that happens—what's important is the spark is there, it burns within you, it ignites some gut-level desire; it makes your loins hot, it entices you into an unknown world that feels too good to deny. The important thing, of course, is to follow your gut.

But how do you do that? How do you meld into the power and authority and discipline that those uniforms represent?

No magic short of a very friendly uniform store with an overly obliging clerk and a sky-high limit on your MasterCard will make you immediately look like an accomplished uniform enthusiast. And no amount of plastic-acquired regalia can give you the frame of mind that makes owning and appreciating and wearing uniforms one of the great pleasures and friendship builders in this particular corner of gay culture.

As with most passion-inclining perversions, it takes some work. But pleasurable work it is. So, you might ask, what's the first step?

Well, there are a number that can be taken alone or at about the same time. First and foremost: seek out others who share your uniform enthusiasm. That can happen through the bars, through ads in such things as The Drummer classifieds or other community publications, through common cruising grounds, through gay computer boards, through gay phone lines—use just about any avenue you might think would produce some interest from another man who shares what you find enticing.

If you're like most men exploring this interest, before you've reached the point of wanting to share it with someone, you've likely acquired a chunk or two of uniform gear. Wear it. Wear it anywhere you think it might attract the interest of a kindred soul. And wear it WELL. With dignity, with respect, with pride. Even if it's only a $2.65 shirt with the chevrons missing that you picked up at the local Disabled Veterans Thrift Shop. It shows your interest, and the more it shows, the greater your chance of making contacts (and of finding out from them where to go for more).

If you DON'T have any uniform regalia, how do you go about acquiring it? In short, that's a long process (unless of course, you've got that friendly store and clerk, and deep pockets - previous paragraph). Some men I know have been at it for a quarter-century or more, and they still buy uniforms and more uniforms when they see ones that grab them (and boots, and other related gear). And they swap it and sell it and trade it. After more than 15 years of collecting myself, I still can't resist a bargain or some incredibly sharp-looking new shirt or jacket, or a pair of brilliant boots that makes that old left nut still tingle.

The sources are many. If you live in an area blessed with military installations, you've got a distinct advantage for those types of uniforms. Scout the thrift stores and surplus dealers and second-hand merchants in your region. You have to do it fairly regularly and with a discerning eye, but bargains turn up - items that you'll wear and make others say "Hot damn, that's hot." And they'd curse louder if you told 'em what you paid.

Actual uniform stores whose day-to-day business is with the military or policemen, firemen, sheriffs and other law-enforcement types are a bit more difficult. Some welcome pretty well all customers, but even then, the person's bearing and attitude make a huge difference to the reception you'll get. Go in twittering like a seventh-grade girls' gym class and the reception will be colder than your high-school shower. Go in with self-assurance, knowing what you want and treating everyone else there with respect, and you're likely to do far, far better.

Keep in mind that sales of many items are restricted to badge-carrying officers only; think your requests and purchases through before you say what you want. In many establishments, being a member of a recognized group will get you service that the average guy off the street won't merit. (Membership in an organization such as the American Uniform Association can be a great assist in some of these establishments.) Another shopping route to explore for new merchandise is mail-order. Use the business-directories section of your library to look for businesses that might fill your needs through a catalog purchase requiring only a telephone call and a credit-card number.

One other source that can be rewarding, although the hunting can be frustrating, is gun and militaria shows. Watch newspaper event listings or notices in surplus stores for these shows - usually one- or two-day affairs held in large halls on a weekend. Some states and provinces have a "Historical Arms Association" that sponsors these events. Among a lot of fire power hardware and some fairly strident political proselytizing, you may well find some uniform bargains. (Like dealing at uniform stores, attitude here counts.)

Consistently the most useful uniform resource I've found is the Yellow Pages. Wherever I travel I check the obvious listings ("Uniforms," "Thrift Stores," "Second-hand Dealers," etc.) for places that might have a gem of a find. It's amazing what turns up.

One caution for anyone about to embark on a uniform-shopping spree: collect wisely.

Consistency and authenticity count for a great deal with serious uniform men. Few things are a greater turn off than seeing someone "playing uniform" looking as if he just roared through the military corner of the local Salvation Army grabbing anything that fit and wearing it together, no matter how mismatched it all may be or how ridiculous it looks to the knowing eye. Better to wear just a properly pressed uniform shirt with a pair of 501s than to play mix-and-match and look like Klinger gone berserk in the prop and costume department. Best to choose an area or two and collect slowly, methodically, gradually achieving the appearance that will make men stop in their tracks.

And what do you do once they've stopped in their tracks, looked you up and down, liked what they've seen, and said "Let's pursue this somewhere private. Private!"???

That's where laying the groundwork ends and the real imagination of the uniform scene begins.

What will it be? A grizzled old policeman trying to put the cuffs on a first offender who's resisting arrest? How about that bull-necked USMC drill instructor chewing out a green young recruit because he keeps screwing up in rifle training? Or that barracks scene when best buddies are stripping out of filthy cammies and heading for the shower? Or that smart-ass speeder, suddenly chastened, pleading into mirrored sunglasses for the highway patrolman to move into the woods and let him settle out of court?

Once you get into the uniform and into the mythology and mystique of the culture that is as essential as the badge or the service insignia, the possibilities are limited only by the breadth of your imagination—and whatever sets your left ball tugging. Or your right. ■

FELLOWSHIP IN UNIFORM

The American Uniform Association

by Steve Garavelli, AUA Archivist

Polished... leather gloves... military haircuts... crisply pressed cloth... glinting medals and shinier badges. For fetishists who love the look and feel and fantasy of uniforms, there is one club which offers its members camaraderie and resources, knowledge and power. The American Uniform Association recently celebrated their sixteenth year in formation this last October, at their Annual Review in Los Angeles. The event was an historic one, cosponsored by the three oldest Los Angeles uniform clubs, the California B & B Corps, the Regiment of the Black & Tans, and the Corps of Rangers. And while the AUA is not the oldest gay uniform club, it is the largest club in the world with members in over a dozen countries. Welcoming both men and women who wear uniforms with pride and interest, it is a social organization, existing to provide a fellowship for those interested in uniforms of all types and styles.

AUA's rich history began on the East Coast in the mid-seventies. Though some uniform-oriented clubs existed in Los Angeles and Southern California during that era, the men in uniform on the East Coast were slower to organize. Well-established leather and motorcycle clubs had been popular for over a decade, providing active social organizations, but the interest uniform men had in organizing was different. They wanted an organization that would help them share their interest and excitement about uniforms.

During 1976, small groups of uniformed men began meeting in New York, Washington, D.C. and San Francisco. New Yorker, Colin Streeter, soon became the driving force for organizing men in uniform, bringing together those who would play important roles in the early AUA organization. Discussions about uniform events and a possible club culminated in the New York group proposing a party Halloween weekend at the infamous Mineshaft.

The "ElectraGlide Party" that October 1977 was a success, bringing out seventy-five men in uniform for the private event. The highlight was the screening of ElectraGlide in Blue, a popular mainstream film with men in the uniform movement. Full of great visuals of highway patrolmen on their motorcycles, ElectraGlide also showcased the attitude and power behind the uniform; its hero learned to become the man in charge you don't say "no" to.

The day after that first party, attendees held another organizing meeting. Volunteer groups were set up to produce a newsletter, to find out what kind of organization the uniform men wanted, and to put together more events. In December 1977, the first issue of BULLSHEETS was mailed out. The printed newsletter took its name from the nom de guerre given to bulletins posted at muster in most New York City police station houses. It featured articles about the fledgling organization, uniform requirements, and photographs from newspapers, magazines, or from the excellent photographers among the members.

The second issue of BULLSHEETS appeared early in 1978. In it, the volunteer group — now called the interim Steering Committee — proposed the name "American Uniform Association," and included a survey ballot on organizational questions. Within a few months the interim organization was approved by 67 men in the US, Canada, and England. The AUA was off and running.

The survey found that most men favored the AUA being a more open association, rather than a club with restrictive membership. They also decided against requiring an "official" uniform, preferring instead to support the diversity of member interests. Many men responding to the survey indicated that while they wanted the AUA to hold uniform events, it would be just as important that the AUA be a source of information on uniforms—where to see them, where to get them, how to wear them, and the legal issues involved in wearing them.

The interim Steering Committee formed seven subcommittees to draft the guidelines that became the AUA Standard Operating Procedures. Small events called "Musters" were scheduled for later in the spring at the Eagle in Exile in Washington, D.C., and for the Army/Navy Game in early December in Philadelphia. The 1st Annual Review was set for October 27-29, 1978, in New York. By the time of the Review, the AUA had 92 charter members; approximately 80 of them attended that first Review.

The 2nd Annual Review in 1979 was again held in New York City, on Columbus Day weekend (also Canada's Thanksgiving), since then, Annual Review has always been held on that holiday weekend, alternating in New York every other year until 1991. The 3rd (1980) and 13th (1990) were held in Chicago, while the 5th (1982) and 15th (1992) were held in San Francisco. Other cities hosting Annual Reviews have been Denver (1984), Seattle (1986), Atlanta (1988), and Washington, D.C. (1991). AUA musters and events have been held in other cities including Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cleveland, Portland, Toronto, and

Vancouver, B.C.

Experiencing a steady growth rate, the AUA became a formal, not-for-profit organization in 1981, working with a Steering Committee and Operating Staff, Bylaws, and Standard Operating Procedures. AUA's policy encouraged the formation of local "chapter" organizations, including strong groups in New York, Chicago and Texas. Soon after, the Bay Area Brigade was formed in San Francisco (replacing the older Pacific Drill Patrol), and the Great Lakes Division was formed with members in Toronto, Syracuse, Rochester, and Cleveland. Over the years, chapters sprang up throughout the U.S. Though some are now inactive, there are currently chapters in New York (New York Chapter), Boston (Corps of New England), Washington, D.C. (Mid-Atlantic Corps), Atlanta (Georgia Brigade), Cleveland (Rangers), Chicago (Chicago Brigade), and Vancouver, B.C. (Pacific Command)

Although the AUA has attempted to keep the members well informed about problems that might arise when they wear their uniforms in public, there have been a few incidents when overzealous officials acted without due regard to personal rights. In 1981, a Canadian member was arrested in Toronto on an impersonation charge while wearing a US police uniform. Though the case was subsequently dismissed on appeal, this first AUA legal victory had a heavy personal cost for the member in question.

During 1984's 7th Annual Review in Denver, three out-of-town members were arrested by Denver police and charged with impersonation, even though none was wearing a uniform that resembled the Denver police uniform. The next day the AUA Legal Defense Fund was set up to pay the legal expenses of those members, and others who might face similar problems in the future. When the city prosecutor finally brought the charges to trial, the judge declared the city ordinance unconstitutionally vague (This same judge had previously declared the city's ordinance against cross-dressing unconstitutional.)

To deal with some of the legal issues regarding wearing uniforms, BULLSHEETS has included legal memoranda on federal, state and city laws on official "impersonation", on wearing certain uniforms and insignia, and on carrying weapons. The AUA has always stressed that it is illegal for anyone who is not an authorized officer to wear the police uniform of the local jurisdiction in public, or to impersonate a police official with deliberate deception. Likewise, the AUA has always required everyone attending its events to sign pledges not to carry weapons or prohibited drugs.

Through the years AUA members have been active in promoting better community/police relations, through raising funds to buy protective clothing for financially strapped police departments, and through working to end the bans on gay or lesbian police officers. Some of the first openly gay police officers inducted into the San Francisco Police Department in 1979 were AUA members, and current members hold jobs in other departments.

The AUA has also supported removing bans on gays serving in the military. Member Perry Watkins was the first openly gay man to win a lawsuit against the Army, and the first AUA member to attend a Presidential Inauguration -- in uniform at the President's request! The AUA welcomed its first women members in 1992, including both previous International Ms. Leather Gabrielle Antolovich, and then-current IMsL, Kay Hallanger. I was proud to march with fellow veteran and AUA member Hallanger in the March on Washington last April.

New members of the American Uniform Association receive copies of the shoulder patch insignia of the club designed to be worn with either police or military type uniforms. The AUA shield was created by Randy West for the 1978 Review. Members can wear the shield on their uniforms as a full color patch, as a subdued pin, or as a seal on special order badges from the largest police badge supply company, Blackington.

Members receive a subscription to BULLSHEETS, currently published quarterly. BULLSHEETS regularly runs articles on police and military uniforms, with regulations and plenty of photographs. Other features include reviews of uniform merchandise, AUA business, cartoons by Sean Martin, and articles and photos from both AUA events and public police/military gatherings. All covers for recent BULLSHEETS have been original artwork created for the AUA, by artists such as The Hun, Dad, Walt Henry, and others. In the DrumMedia column of Drummer #167, Joseph Bean called the current BULLSHEETS, edited by Andy Mangels, "an inspiration," citing that it "could now be reason enough for any uniform-interested gay man (or woman!) to join the organization."

Members also receive two other publications from the AUA: a Roster, and a dual Uniform Travel Guide. The Roster includes listings from every AUA member, in which they write about themselves and their uniform interests. The Uniform Guide lists commercial uniform suppliers, both mail order, and local. Members often provide tips about attitudes and bargains at their area outlets. The Travel Guide lists museums, battlefields, and gatherings where uniforms and the people who wear them are available for viewing.

The highlight of each year is the Annual Review. The four-day weekend has a variety of events, ranging from bar nights and beer busts to uniform swap meets, tours of local museums or military areas, and dinners. The classiest dinner is the Officer's Mess held on Saturday night, at which full dress uniforms are required. In the first 16 years quite a few colorful traditions have developed. An honor guard posts the national flags of the members in attendance, and a "battle streamer" for the host city is attached to the AUA flag. After a four-course dinner and entertainment, there are traditional toasts, absent friends are remembered, outgoing Steering Committee members are honored, new committee members are inducted, and outstanding contributions to the AUA are recognized.

The 17th Annual American Uniform Association Review will take place on October 7-10th, 1994, in Chicago. It will be hosted by the AUA Chicago Brigade, the same men and women who put on the successful Uniform Muster every year in Chicago during International Mr. Leather Weekend, May 26-

30th. Other major AUA events include Portland Uniform Weekend, held Martin Luther King's birthday weekend every January in Portland, Oregon, the Cleveland Esprit de Corps weekend in June, sponsored by the Rangers; and events in the Washington, D.C. area during the Mid-Atlantic Leather Weekend, sponsored by the AUA Mid-Atlantic Corps.

Many local AUA chapters host events and bar nights in their area as well. The Mid-Atlantic Corps hosts a Uniform Bar Night at the Washington, D.C. Eagle on the third Saturday of each month, which is also usually the Uniform Night for the Rangers at either Cleveland's Leather Stallion or Akron's Adams Street Barracks. The fourth Friday of each month finds a Uniform Dinners sponsored by the Chicago Brigade, with a Uniform Party following at the Chicago Eagle. The AUA's New York Chapter holds monthly dinners, as well as other uniform events.

Membership in the American Uniform Association is open to people who share the aims and the spirit of the AUA. Applicants must be sponsored by current members. Those interested in joining AUA, or in finding out about future events and local chapters, may contact them at their new address of PO Box 1074, Franklin D. Roosevelt Station, New York, NY 10150.

BY INGUS PRODUCTIONS

ON THE ROAD

By Crow

The guy on the bike was just riding along the highway. The late night, the cold and no moon didn't bother him. He liked taking in the wind and the speed and the road.

He would look at the oncoming vehicles, the trucks with all their lights: the white headlights, the yellow sideviews and line of lights in the roof of the rig... they were like ghost ships or tanks, always flying in groups of three or five.

He counted them as they flew by: three, eight, 11, 14, 19... and each of those rigs had to have a driver, a soldier or maybe a real animal. The biker often thought of soldiers as animals. There were enough truck drivers to fill a truck he thought and smiled at the idea.

The biker had stopped at the shoulder of the dirt road that lay off the exit at Kingston. It was unlit save for the red neon sign of the 24 hour donut shop a mile or so down from him. That, and the red glowing tip of his cigar which hung loosely from between his lips. This was his third for the night and he was enjoying the fact that he was gently wasted.

His eyes were half shut and he leaned far back in the saddle of his bike. His thighs were spread apart and his boots were firmly planted on the pegs at the bike's fork. He thought that the night was like the dark of a Rex drawing. He began to think, stroking his denim-clad crotch, he'd make a fine portrait himself. As he pulled out his dick, a floppy, half hard, eight-incher, he thought of trucks. As he peeled back the skin to expose the greasy, sticky bulb of a head, he thought about soldiers and animals. And while he sucked on one cigar and pulled slowly on the other, he could see the ships and tanks fly by.

The truck's lights blinded the biker and the rumble and hiss of the machine slowing and stopping in the dusty road confused and disoriented him. He was ready to take off, dick in the air, but the cabin door opened and down into the cold night air stepped the driver.

The trucker walked in front of his rig, the headlights half turning him into silhouette. His breath was like smoke from his mouth because of the cold. Because of the cold, when he undid his fly, pulled out his sweaty, filthy ten ing pool, kneeled squarely into the middle of it and caught the yellow stream in his mouth, gulping quickly and thirstily; not letting a drop touch his lips or chin, just the back of his throat. The piss was hot, sweet and from the looks of it, the kneeling man thought, there was plenty of it.

The trucker raised his eyebrows at this other man's actions. Not in surprise but in anticipation. He knew the minute he drove up and saw the man on the bike, that the game was afoot and had to be played through to the end. And as his brow furrowed in concentration, he slowly stepped towards the piss-drinking cocksucker, never missing the mark nor breaking the steady flow.

He was now standing above the open mouth like at a urinal in the public toilet of a truck stop. This was past a minute of pissing and he was almost empty. The mouth stuck out its tongue to catch the heavy drip as the trucker milked the last of rank fluid out of the gaping slit that worked as his pisshole. He rubbed the stiff and dirty tube along the tongue before letting it slide up the pisshole, well past the point a tongue should go. The trucker wasn't worried. Heck, he'd slid his little finger up his dick more times than he could remember. And as he drew the head before him in his huge, meaty hands, his member went past the panting tongue, past the tonsils and nested itself right down the gullet.

The biker's nostrils flared as inches of dick and opened his bladder, the steam rose in the long lazy arc that the piss flowed. The puddle at the end was growing into a smoky oasis as the trucker pissed for ten seconds, 20 seconds, half a minute and continued.

The biker saw all this even as the man standing in front of the truck must surely have seen him. So he walked over to the steam-he hoarsely tried to breathe with that big, smelly truncheon of a dick had left him. The lack of oxygen made his head spin and as the intruding machine started to slide up and down his throat, bruising the soft tissue and coating it with thick, salty pre-cum, he let loose a guttural moan.

The trucker liked this and as he started to slam his dick like a plunger down the tight and hungry throat, he thought of how good this was. Better than his wife, better than his son. He could fuck this throat just the way he liked to: teeth scraping along the shaft and his balls like lemons banging into the cocksucker's rough chin. Nobody sucked cock like a real man and only real men knew how to suck cock!

As he felt the load rising in his balls, he grabbed at the cropped head of the man below him, fixing him tight at the base of his rod. It grew even bigger, swelling to now fill the throat completely and with a grunt and a sigh, the trucker let go, spewing forth a week-long load of hot, salty cum.

The biker felt the deluge of jizz flow down his throat before realizing he could not breathe. The molten liquid rose up to fill his sinuses and spew from his nose, into his moustache, the trucker's pubes, his shirt. He gagged and choked, breathing and swallowing all the cum down into his gut and out onto the sweaty pubic bush his nose was planted in. His eyes bulged in their sockets and his neck wouldn't support his head. But the strong hand at the head's base held firmly and he greedily set to work cleaning the slimy truncheon, the dripping balls and all the cum he had let escape through his nose and mouth.

His fingers were not idle as he slurped away. He dragged his fingers through the muddy pool of piss he knelt in and scooped up throbbing and the biker once again started to moan.

He pulled harder on his burning dick, frantically, as the grit trapped under his foreskin cut a little, bloody wound into his now-exploding cock. The pisshole opened, the juice shooting, pouring, seeping out onto the damp, muddy road, onto the trucker's workboots and mingling with the dirt and piss that coated the biker's sagging, spent tool.

He kneeled there, gasping. The air was thick with the acrid smell of urine and semen. The trucker, stroking the biker's head, reached into a shirt pocket and pulled out a long, fat cigar. He bit off the end off, and spat it into the mud at his booted feet. He slid its length once or twice in his mouth and said: "Got a light?"

The man on his knees slowly eased himself up from the cool, muddy patch of urine in the road. As the man beside him helped him straighten up, he got out a Zippo and fired up the long, fresh cigar that was held between the other man's lips. It looked good there, this burning tube. Held tight between the fleshy the wet gritty paste. He rubbed it along his near bursting rod, the pebbles dug into the taut skin, he played his knob with the rough, dirty lubricant.

The trucker kept busy too. His hands found their way to the kneeling man's tits and pulled hard on the metal rings he found there. Between his hammer-like fingers and anvils for thumbs, the nubs of flesh were soon raw and lips and white teeth of the trucker and the smell was hot and clean, not like some candy flavored cigarette. He breathed in the fumes, smiling, trying to calm himself after that raw, vicious scene they shared. His hands were still covered with the dirt, the piss, the cum and blood that made him reach this crazy high.

The man smoking the cigar gently puffed away. He offered the biker a drag, while noting that his face and hair were shiny with the now drying cum that he had been gagging on. The guy's nose and his lips and his cheeks were covered in the stuff.

He let the guy take his time with the cigar and guided him firmly to the front of the truck. He sat the biker down on the fender and leaned him back against the grill. He took back his cigar and handed the sitting man a bandana to clean his hands and face but the biker shook his head, no. "He must like it like that," the trucker mused.

The biker sat back and let the trucker open his jacket and shirt and take them off. He concentrated on the re-stiffening ten inch dick as he felt the heavy, leaden hands roam his body.

Pinching his already raw tits, stroking his tight, strong shoulders and under his damp armpits. The hands were obviously searching for something and the biker found himself roughly twisted about, his face and tits pressed into the truck's grill and forced down to his knees.

As he pushed him down by the shoulders, the trucker admired the clean, smooth lines of the back. Biking had kept this man in good shape. But there were none of the tattoos that the trucker had been expecting - hoping for. Tattoos reminded him of his uncle, who, after coming back from the war, shared his room with him when he was 16. He could see those tats real close, especially when his uncle was fucking his face or his ass. The sweaty surface of the older man's anchors and death's heads and eagles were forever burned in his memory, and he continuously sought out to relive the experience.

But this guy here had none.

He tore the bandana in two. As he tied the unmarked arms of the man to the grill of the truck, he sucked hard on the cigar. He'd make some tattoos, he thought.

“He sucked hard on the cigar. He'd make some tattoos, he thought.”

The biker started to pant with the feeling of being tied up. He was stretched out along the grill fastened there by his wrists. Like he was being crucified, but he was also on his knees as if he were praying. The chrome grill pressed into his chest and throat and he couldn't see exactly what was going on behind him. He felt the iron spike fingers tracing patterns on his back and kind of scraping him with their rough surfaces and uncut nails. He was breathing in billows of smoke from the cigar and could hear the man behind him inhale and exhale in concentration. He heard him take one last drag on the cigar then the biker cried out, loud and painful, as he felt the fragrant, live coal travel across his tightly muscled flesh.

The trucker slowly, carefully went about his work. He brushed the cigar's tip across the tied-down virgin back not to put it out but to leave long, raw trails of burnt flesh. Opening the first few layers of skin so that when he flicked the cigar's ash, the cinders mingled with the wet surface and would heal in black lines. As he worked, the screaming cry made pleasant noise in the background. The biker wouldn't move, the trucker also knew, for fear of being more severely hurt. But the trucker also knew that the biker loved it. He could tell by the way his back moved. By the way he moaned at the cigar's touch.

In the still cool air the trucker worked on at the images. To him they were like stained glass windows like the ones in church on Sunday mornings, or they were like graffiti, like the messages that he helped to scrawl in the toilets at the truck stops along his route, while waiting for someone to choke on his forearm-sized dick.

For him all these ideas meant something and he felt good to share them with a real man. The one tied up to the front of his truck didn't move an inch, so much did this man accept the other.

The biker was hoarse and his mouth dry from screaming. He felt the lines burn not just into his skin but down to his very bones. His nerves were made of acid, and resonated with the kind of pain that does not diminish like a slap or a punch but steadily throbs with the same beat as one's pulse.

He had almost passed out when he felt no new skin being charred, but he could feel the gritty ash as it lay coating, protecting the new wounds. He heard the trucker step back, in order to admire his handiwork. He also felt the cold air touch the rest of his body, biting at his tits, his ears, his fingers where there was little circulation. He also felt the pulsing network of lines burning on his back. He didn't know whether to die or to come, this contrast in senses so overwhelming him.

Then, as if to bless him or clean him off, the biker felt the trucker pissing on him once again. The warm fluid soothed the sharp, knifing pain and washed away the excess ash. From where the trucker stood it really looked like the man's back was on fire: all the steam flying up from the newly decorated skin.

"It sure was a pretty sight", the pissing man thought, milking the head of its last drops.

He then inspected the result of his hard work. The biker kneeled there, twitching and panting, held up only by the halves of a cotton kerchief that held him fast to the truck. In the glare of the headlights, the trucker could see he had done a fine job. The skull, just like the one on his uncle's thigh, was grinning and frightening. It was like the old soldier was fucking his face again, the tattoo never completely out of view.

As he was untied, the biker slowly spoke, looking wildly at this general, this real animal and said: "It was good."

The trucker affectionately rumbled his wet and matted hair. "Let's get some sleep," he responded. "There's enough room for two men in the cabin of the truck."

SHAVED DOWN

A hot, hard beauty. Dylan submits to nearly endless cruel positions of rope bondage, heavy irons, bit gags, tit clamps, and more. Master David gradually shaves the lad's entire body and head. When finished Dylan is smooth as can be. These two are exceptionally hot together!

ROPED AND DRILLED

Master Lash ropes and dominates 6'4" Dustin Lee. Dustin is a steamingly hot sex slave. Lash skillfully trains his lad to obey through bondage and discipline. Dustin serves in half a dozen tight bondage positions.

ROPED AND PUMPED

It took a firm and experienced hand to control this big stud. Rick Pantera is all the rage, and here he submits to a trial period as a sexual slave. Kept roped, chained, and gagged, the lad is used for Master David's sexual pleasure. This is Rick as you won't see him anywhere else!

THIRTY DAY TRIAL

Aladdin came to us in a very needful state. He submits to Cougar Cassi and finds himself wildly turned on to his slavery. Aladdin struggles to serve, revealing the natural slave. He was ultimately unable to contain his load.
